ABOUT THE TRAINING:

In an ideal work environment, difficult behaviors would not be tolerated. In reality, dealing with challenging personality types is something many face as part of their everyday work experience.

Having the tools and resources to deal with a difficult situation or difficult person is critical.

Dealing with continually difficult people in the workplace requires a plan of action and support from others. Once you have a plan of action to deal with those small “hits” it is something you can always have in your back pocket.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER:

Tami has over 20 years of management experience in manufacturing and the non-profit sector, and has served as a consultant to numerous organizations. As a trainer, Tami is well respected for delighting audiences with humor and presenting in a clear, easy-to-understand fashion.
