Motivation, Recognition and Rewards

What is a manager's role in motivating their employees? Can you really motivate someone who doesn't appear to be very motivated? How much should you recognize your people and can you overdo it?

These questions and more will be discussed as we identify the tools and strategies needed to maximize each employee's motivation and performance.

Come prepared to learn from other attendees and to share your best practices as we explore the challenges of motivating, recognizing and rewarding.
