Leading Through Change

It's not what happens to you... it's what you do about it that counts. This workshop encourages participants to better understand their reactions to change, draw on their own experiences, learn about "change hardy" characteristics, and develop their own blueprints for managing change.

A leader's role in managing change and how their attitude has a tremendous effect on the team will also be discussed. Supervisors will learn how to present change to their employees and foster a positive team attitude through times of transition.
